6. [] Met with Mr. John Garrity, House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee staff, who told me that briefings by the Secretary of Defense (who will be followed by various military commanders) are tentatively scheduled to begin on 4 March. The full Committee is expected to hold an organizational meeting later this week.

7. [] Met with Mr. Herbert Roback, Staff Administrator, Military Operations Subcommittee, Committee on Government Operations, who told me that the Chairman, Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), is considering reassignment of Committee jurisdiction of the Central Intelligence Agency to his own Subcommittee, the Military Operations Subcommittee, from the Moss Subcommittee on Government Information and Foreign Operations. Mr. Roback indicated that there is no indication that the Chairman intends to place demands on the Agency for briefings or otherwise. He noted that Mr. Holifield is completely well disposed toward the Agency and its activities, and in the past has kept up-to-date on the Agency through his membership in the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. Mr. Roback thanked me for coming by and said he would keep me posted as the situation develops.

Murphy continues to express concern over the high-level negotiations being conducted [] in an effort to gain U.S. approval for the sale of computers to them. Murphy is convinced they will subsequently wind up in the hands of the Soviets and the Chinese Communists and with the acquisition of these machines they will obtain computer technology which they have not been able to develop on their own. In connection with this Murphy asked if there were any new studies on the computer subject which could be made available to the Joint Committee. He specifically mentioned a study by the National Academy of Science on computer exports originally prepared in 1969 and updated in 1970.
